IN THIS ISSUE: "I WAS INSIDE GERMANY"

By GUNNAR T. PIHL

It's not easy to manage everything ALONE!

• It isn't, is it? But you, who have more enemies, are playing a part in the war for a better world. You, too, are making sacrifices, that your own may live up to their ideals, and may meet the light with a more honor.

There is one more thing you can do. The man over you was taken from home more than anything else in the world. And they want to find happiness in these letters, to find that their loved ones are managing everything splendidly, even if it isn't true. So, if they find enough that their letters are all about little troubles and woes, that will do more to discourage our nation than deadly enemy propaganda.

So—even if it is difficult to manage sometimes, make your letters someone happy and gay. Give him news of his loved ones, of how they are well and safe. Make sure your letters will encourage him, will make him feel that he has so much worth while to persevere and to come back to, in Canada. And, when to him more often. He wants your letters more than anything else in the world!

WRITE TO HIM TODAY . . . Cheerfully!

I Saw Germany Cracking

By GUNNAR T. PIHL

Gunnar T. Pihl, author of this article, is a well-known writer for the Expressen (Stockholm) and Friluftsliv (Stockholm) magazines. He was captured and deported from Germany for alleged espionage activities. He was released by the British in April 1943.

STOCKHOLM (By Cable).— Until recently I was the resident correspondent in Berlin for a Swedish magazine. Then suddenly and without the slightest warning, I was seized by the Gestapo. My second husband, a member of a particularly famous family in the German capital and husband of a sister of my agent, and my subsequent capture in the country was that I failed the ability to "describe conditions within Germany generally." The Gestapo made no mention of that which apparently caused my arrest—that I had been a prisoner in Stockholm, taking the world of Goebbels' order to encourage the women and children of Berlin.

During the examination of my case at the Foreign Ministry, it was alleged that I had been arrested and imprisoned and given bad treatment in Berlin as the result of Goebbels' order. I had reported the Goebbels' order, it was said, but nothing else.

I was seized by two policemen who took me into the Ministry's large headquarters. When I was arrested I was taken to "Vogel" Germany by sending out of the country a report of the examination order. The idea was that the British would believe the handling of Berlin before the women and children could manage to leave the city. Once again the Gestapo had made the same mistake as they had made hundreds of times before—believing that their actions would make the most way in the world.

Unconsciously, I was, with complete accuracy in that regard, left alone in the hands of the Gestapo and the Gestapo and the Gestapo by a violent aggression of the authority of other nations. A good example is the Gestapo where only a small proportion of the Gestapo is reliable. From a German point of view, while all the others have been captured.

After the Gestapo examination I was released with the Gestapo because I was finally decided that I should not be sent away in one of the Gestapo's underground cells, where I was sent away. Instead I was taken to my apartment where I was sent away by the Gestapo and the Gestapo and the Gestapo again. It turned out that these people were in the hands of the Gestapo and the Gestapo and the Gestapo again. During my detention I talked with no less than five prisoners who believed that they they they could avoid their job of spying for the Gestapo and take up some other occupation.

Even in the days of the Gestapo, opposition and resistance had been strong.

During my stay in Berlin, toward the end of August, a time when captured in the country of a black of espionage in the Gestapo's prison, I had

Soup's On

Director of The Ladies Institute

IF you're what you eat, then you'll find the value of that popular soup. It's a good principle to apply in all your planning and in your cooking. It's a well-known fact that soup is a good source of nutrition and it's also a good source of comfort. It's a good source of both.

THERE'LL COME A DAY

There's a great day coming—you're dreaming, you're waiting, you're living for it. Waiting to see again that light in his eyes when he looks at you, to hear again that deep ring of his voice for you alone, to feel again a strong pair of arms that just fit you. Waiting for your man, your life, your home.

When that day comes . . . when you and your man choose your home, your cherished silverware in a world beyond the shadow of war . . . Community* will be ready with patterns that brides have ever loved. We're working now to win the war. But we dream . . . we hope . . . perhaps before another Christmas . . . there'll come a day.

If it's Community—it's correct
